Attractive Room of Grammar Grade.

The pupils in the senior grammar grade of the School street school have manifested a fine school spirit and enterprise that has enabled them to do such a commendable act in beautifying their class room with busts of Washington and Lincoln, mounted at either side of a fine picture of the national capitol. The considerable sum that was required to make the purchases referred to was secured by the members of the school through an entertainment which they recently gave. To encourage the fine spirit manifested among the pupils, the members of the town school committee recently voted to have the walls of their school room retinted and the work has been completed. The appearance of the interior of this grade is sufficiently attractive to cause the firm supplying the busts and pictures to have it photographed and the picture will be reproduced in their catalogue. As in last month's instance, the case against Reneik was continued, this time until Monday, March 7, at the request of his attorney, Charles L. Torrey.

It is alleged that on Sunday last Reneik sold two bottles of Jamaica ginger—containing 92 per cent. alcohol, one in the moraing and one in the afternoon, to one George Randall of Ballouville.

In discussing the case before the court, Prosecuting Attorney Carpenter made it clear that he did not wish to be regarded as a persecutor of Reneik, but he made it equally clear that he did not intend to permit the defendant to continue selling this vicious form of intexicant with utter disregard of the law or persons to whom he delivered it. Reneik admitted selling three bottles of the ginger on Sunday. Attorney Torrey, in defense of Reneik, said that Jamalca ginger could be bought at any grocery store, but was willing to agree that the sales should be under certain restrictions.

Attorney Carpenter finally agreed to a continuance of the case upon Reneik's agreement to stop selling the ginger preparation.

GOVERNOR WEEKS Referred to Business and Agricultural Interests and Urged Conservation.

President E. M. Wheaton presided at the opening of the meeting and intro-duced Judge L. H. Fuller, who pre-sented the speakers to the audience of about three hundred. Governor Weeks spoke in part as follows: When I first received the invitation of President Wheaton to come to Put-nam, my book of engagements was so filled with dates that I could not quite see my way clear to come to your city

Passing from his introductory, the governor talked prin-cipally of the important place that Connecticut holds in the union, and its pre-eminence as a manufacturing and Connecticut holds in the union, and its pre-eminence as a manufacturing and industrial center. Considering the culture of its people, the prominence of its educational institutions, magnificent industrial strength, and important mercantile interests, the governor says that all should be very proud to be of it. To cite the admiration in which Connecticut is held throughout the country the speaker reviewed the fine compliments that he heard paid this state while he as a member of the party of 29 governors made a trip last

To Putnam belongs much of the credit that Connecticut snjoys in the sisterhood of the states. This assemblags represents strongth and signifies a combination of brains and money. The Putnam Business Men's association has the opportunity of making the most of the business propositions that present themselves to the city, Business methods of today demand organization. In this period of competition, it is necessary that men should get together and formulate plans for commercial growth. The effort should be for accumulated effect. There should be no hostility between cities and states. The advancement of one city serves to spur another to greater effort. Governor Weeks said he understood that the Connecticut Business Men's organization was the largest civic organization was the largest civic organization in the state, with 15,000 members, representing 4,000 business houses, and a capital of $200,000,000. The importance of the interests they represent is immense. The business men are no less a factor in the future represent is immense. All Physicians

Must prescribe some of the in-gredients that are contained in Hoed's Barsaparilla - for all trou-bles of the blood, stomach, kid-neys and liver.

They include sarsaparilla, stillingia, yellow dock, gentian, wild cherry bark, mandrake, dandelion, juniper berries, pipaissewa, etc.

The combination and proportions are our own formula and give power to cure beyond the reach of any other prescription or substitute. That's why it is vise to get Rood's and only Hood's.
